

I believe media ownership restrictions should NOT be relaxed. The power of the media is in too few hands as it is. The media is too important a communications tool to have it controlled by a handful of politically-driven wealthy powermongers. Public opinion is very much influenced by network news and should be as diverse and objective as possible. There is NO clear benefit to the public in relexing the threshold from 35% to 45%. I want a stronger rule to limit ownership, rather than weaker rules that would reduce access to diverse opinions.
